U.S. State Authorization Information

LIGS University is an international online university based outside of the United States. It is not accredited by a U.S. Department of Education-recognized accrediting body. Because each U.S. state sets its own regulations for whether its residents can study at institutions without U.S. accreditation, not all U.S. residents are eligible to enroll at LIGS University.

Below is an overview of eligibility, based on current state-by-state requirements (as of 2025). This list is subject to change.

Residents of the following states may study at LIGS University:
Arizona, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois (if there is no physical presence in the state), Louisiana (if the university has no physical presence in the state), Maine, Missouri, Nebraska (for online-only programs), Nevada, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania (if no physical presence is established), South Carolina (unless physical presence is created), South Dakota, Tennessee, Washington, and West Virginia.

Residents of the following states may be eligible under certain conditions or exemptions:
Alaska, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Jersey and North Carolina

Residents of the following states are currently not eligible to study at LIGS University due to accreditation or authorization requirements:
Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, and the District of Columbia.

Important Notice:
This information is provided for general guidance and may not reflect the most recent legal or regulatory changes in individual states. We strongly recommend that U.S. residents consult their state's higher education regulatory body or contact us directly before applying.
